Global Visual Effects Services Market on Target to Reach US $5540 Million US$ by 2025 Says QY Research

Posted on Saturday, April 13, 2019

Los Angeles, CA -- (SBWire) -- 04/13/2019 -- Visual effects (abbreviated VFX) is the process by which imagery is created or manipulated outside the context of a live action shot in film making. The entire Visual Effects Services market continues to grow in the foreseeable future, and with the increased consumer spending on entertainment products and the higher visual requirements for film and television production, Visual Effects Services will gain growing industry influence. Tax policies in different countries are one of the main reasons currently affecting the development of Visual Effects Services companies. The implementation of the tax subsidy policy has led major Visual Effects Services companies to migrate around the world to find the lowest combination of labor costs and tax costs. Many Visual Effects Services employees in Hollywood in the United States held demonstrations to protest against the tax subsidy policy for the film and television technology industry - because this made their original advantages disappear and forced them to follow the company’s migration in various tax incentive countries.
